Tate proposes landfill study

BY DENA BISNETTE
Hancock County officials have a new alternative in waste disposal to consider as a result of a meeting with Mississippi Bureau of Pollution Control officials and State Senator Margaret "Wootsie" Tate.
The board of supervisors, Waveland Mayor John Longo Jr. and Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor Franciewicz Jr. had originally called the Wednesday morning meeting with Bureau Director Charles Chisolm to discuss possible solutions to the problem of a rapidly filling landfill.
However, Hancock County may no longer be alone in their situation because Tate has proposed a long-term solution that could involve a joint effort of Hancock and Pearl River counties.
According to Hancock County Maintenance Superintendent Bill Johnson, who is in charge of the county landfill at Catahoula, the facility is expected to remain useable only a few more months.

Efforts to increase the time land is available for underground disposal of household garbage has been increased through the opening of a separate trash facility at Standard, where the county has no permit to accept household garbage but can accept tree branches, leaves, old appliances and other materials.
Pollution control standards for trash are not as strict as those for household garbage, which during decay can release potentially harmful substances that can leach through soil and contaminate groundwater.
David Taylor of Gulf Regional Planning Commission, who has been assisting the county with the problem, reported to Chisolm that the State Bureau of Geology is expected to do soil borings at the Standard site and an unused portion of the Port commission, school system tangle over building

BY D.C. HARVILL
The Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission locked horns with the Hancock County School System Monday over whether a temporary building can be located at Stennis Airpark to provide office space needed by school administration.

Superintendent of Education Terrell Randolph questioned the commission, at their regular meeting, as to why he had not received a reason for the school system's not being allowed to place a modular building on property adjacent to the current school administration building at the airpark.
The commission told Randolph that it was their policy not to allow temporary buildings in the park and that they had forbidden tenants who had bought property in the park from doing so.
"The Experimental Aircraft Association has had a temporary building in the park for a year and a half and intend to keep it there for all I know," Randolph said.
"I wonder what kind of political pull they have?" he added.
"The Experimental Aircraft Association has only had the building there for about six months, and they are going to make it permanent," Port and Harbor Director Harold "Buz" Olsen replied.

Randolph wants help with office crowding, supervisors say no

BY DENA BISNETTE
Hancock County Superintendent of Education Terrell Randolph is running out of room in his office building and has appealed to the board of supervisors for help.
Board Attorney Gerald Gex said the board may not be able to help because the Mississippi Code contains no authorization for doing so, while Board President Ronald Cuevas said the problem is financial.
Randolph met with the board Tuesday and explained that he and his staff do not have enough room in their present quarters at Stennis Airport, where they occupy a building that belongs to the Port and Harbor Commission.
He has asked for the board's permission to move a trailer from Gulfview Elementary School, where it had been used as a classroom, to a privately owned site near the airport entrance.
A couple of staff members could be moved into it, he said, and the only utility that would be needed would be electricity because personnel could walk the 300 yards back to the main building to use restrooms.
The Port and Harbor Commission has already denied Randolph permission to place the trailer on airport land, but two of the board members have volunteered to look at the alternate site.
Beat Three Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner said that if the proposed site is too close to the airport entrance, the commission might want to reconsider putting the trailer next to the building.

The board has repeatedly asked Randolph why he does not ask his board for permission to build an office on the same site where the county's new junior high-high school complex will be, which is near the existing vocational-technical center as well as the airport.
Randolph said an office is not included in the bond issue and there are no other funds for it.

He said that this year, tax collections have come in about $150,000 short of the district's current budget, which is about $1.2 million without including the bond issue.
The superintendent contends that the board of supervisors must furnish him with office space, and is hoping his next location will be permanent.
The school district's office has been located in the Hancock County Courthouse, the present Sun-Herald Bay Bureau office, the Hancock County

RODNEY FISHER

Fisher named principal at North Bay School

BY DENA BISNETTE
North Bay Elementary School's new principal will be Rodney Fisher.
Fisher, of Long Beach, was unanimously approved by the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School Board Monday night and began orientation work Tuesday morning, Superintendent of Education Roger Oge said.
Fisher, who started his educational career eight years ago with the Long Beach School District, is a veteran of three years in the Bay-Waveland District, having most recently worked with the Chapter I program.
The new principal took last year off to continue studies toward his doctoral degree in education, which he expects to complete Aug. 10 at University of Southern Mississippi.

Oge said Fisher already has bachelor's and master's degrees from USM in elementary education and is already certifiable in elementary administration.
The new principal officially begins work Aug. 1, but has started orientation with Oge, checking the school's facilities and re-familiarizing himself with the curriculum and meeting with faculty and staff.
Fisher has also met with his predecessor, Roger James, who had been reassigned from North Bay to the head administrative position at Bay Senior High School.

Oge said he interviewed Fisher four times before recommending him for the job.
"He has a lot of energy and enthusiasm and I expect him to do a superb job at North Bay," the superintendent said.
Fisher said he is eager to get started and is excited about heading the elementary school.
Fisher is married to a former Bay St. Louis resident, Lori Salinger, and they have two children, Jourdan Lee Fisher, age 16 months, and Joshua Fisher, who is three weeks old.

Waveland board votes 3-2 on Ladner pier fees

BY DENA BISNETTE
Although fees for the use of the renovated Garfield Ladner Memorial Pier have been set, dissension on the matter continues among members of the Waveland Board of Aldermen.
The fees were accepted in a three-to-two vote at a special meeting Monday night, which was also attended by Board of Supervisors President Ronald Cuevas and Beat Five Supervisor Mike Ladner.
The fees include $12 for a one-year family permit that will include parents and minor children, a $3 day fee for fishing and a $1 day fee for people who want to go on the pier but do not choose to fish.
Mayor John Longo Jr., acting under a provision in Waveland's special charter, voted for the fees, along with Ward Three Aldermen Curtis Colson and Ward Two Alderman Bob Hubbard.
Ward One Alderman Barbara Rappold, unable to attend the meeting due to a family matter, voted no by telephone poll.
Ward Four Alderman Stella Frilot, also absent, provided a no vote by telephone, City Clerk Arcelyn Dastugue said.
Longo said the supervisors had been invited because they had contributed $15,000 to the pier extension, which is currently under construction and is expected to be open about Aug. 1.
Longo said he had been among a number of public officials attending a Hancock County Wastewater District No. 1 meeting last week and that he was met by considerable criticism regarding fees for the pier.
Originally, the board had discussed charging a higher fee for non-residents of Waveland who want to use the facility. The city had put about $12,000 into the pier improvements, with the remaining $50,000 being supplied by a Bureau of Marine Resources grant.

He said he had received particularly strong criticism of fees discriminating between Waveland residents and non-residents from the supervisors because some county monies had been included in the project.
In voting yes, Longo said,

"There seems to be a hold-out to stick it to them," referring to the original plan to charge non-residents more.
Dastugue stated that Rappold had told her when she was polled that her opposition to the fees was based on the fact that there was only one fee schedule being proposed. She was in favor of separate fee schedules.
Dastugue asked whether the reason for the no vote should be included in the minutes of the meeting.

Board Attorney Lucien Gex said the opinion could be included by approval of a motion from one of the board members. No motion was made and only the numbers of yes and no votes will be entered in the minutes.
Colson, who was elected in a May special election, said his first impression when he was told about the lighted wooden extension to the existing pier was that there should be no

Shoreline Park couple victims of murder/suicide

BY D.C. HARVILL

A Shoreline Park couple are dead following an apparent murder/suicide.

Richard Stimler, 46, and his wife, Sadie Marie Stimler, 36, died in the incident Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Stimler's father, John Gunderson, on 14th Street in Shoreline Park.

His department received a call from Gunderson on the 911 emergency number at 8:30 p.m., Peterson said, and when deputies arrived they found the Stimlers both dead by gunshot wounds to the head inflicted by a .38 caliber handgun.

Gunderson, terminally ill with cancer, said he tried, unsuccessfully, to protect his daughter, who had been living with him because of problems between her and her husband, when Richard Stimler came to the house with a gun.

The Stimlers went into the bedroom area of the house where Mr. Stimler shot his wife in the rear of the head. Gunderson said he then tried to subdue Stimler, but due to his weakened condition was unable to, and Stimler put the gun to his own head and fired.

Coroner Harold Stiglet pronounced the two dead at the scene.

An autopsy was to be done on both victims Wednesday afternoon, Peterson said.

Two children were witness to the shooting, Mrs. Stimler's 11-year-old son and a 12-year-old visitor.

Given current evidence the incident will probably be ruled a murder/suicide, Peterson explained.

Glen Strong is in charge of the continuing investigation.

In light of the large number of murders which have occurred in Shoreline Park and Bayside Park subdivisions, Peterson stated that those two areas account for an estimated 60 percent of all law enforcement problems in the county.

"In those two areas implementation of a building code would be a big help. As it is now, a lot of people can move into those areas with very little funds. We have a lot of transient types who move into those areas because of that," Peterson said.

"There are lots of nice people in both areas" Peterson said, "But I'm sure those nice people will agree a building code would improve those areas."

Catahoula site, which totals 28 acres.

Johnson has been trying to obtain permission from officials of John C. Stennis Space Center to use the rest of the site, which is in the center's buffer zone. However, the site was permitted more than 10 years ago, and U.S. Environmental Protection Agency standards have changed.

According to Tate, Pearl River County has no public landfill and is currently paying, along with the City of Picayune, to have its garbage hauled to private landfills. One of the landfills is near the center of the county and accepts about half the county's garbage, while the remaining half is trucked to a landfill outside the county.

The senator proposed a long-term solution that will involve both counties and possibly John C. Stennis Space Center and a third county.

Tate is serving on a Pearl River County Development Association task force for litter disposal. She and another task force member, Steve Sheppard, presented the supervisors with a proposal asking for a study to be conducted by a private contractor through Department of Energy.

Sheppard said he believes some U.S. Environmental Protection Agency funding may be available for the study, which would indicate whether some type of solid waste disposal other than a landfill would be feasible.

Some of Tate and Sheppard's suggestions included a combination of recycling and incineration, which would still require some type of landfill for burial of the ash from non-recyclable materials and an incineration program that would generate power for local use instead of for sale to electric utilities and other buyers, as is done in Pascagoula.

Tate said cogeneration of about 250,000 tons of garbage a year into electrical power would allow three counties and the become involved in the work of the Legion here in Bay St. Louis and the State and National levels through their American Legion membership," Prevou stated.

Prevou reported that war-time veterans by the thousands have been responding to invitations to join the American Legion making it not only the nation's largest but also fastest growing of such groups.

The Legion has added a quarter of a million members in the past three years, bringing its total membership to a record which hasn't been reached in 30 years.

Veterans interested in learning more about the programs of the American Legion are encouraged to contact any of the officers above listed of the Bay St. Louis post.

Legion installation set for Friday

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

Installation for the officers of the Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Post No. 139, Bay St. Louis will be held Friday beginning at 6:30 p.m. at the post's home.

Henry Prevou, of Bay St. Louis was re-elected at the June meeting as post commander.

Other officers elected were, Richard C. Brehm, first vice-commander; Jesse Burns, second vice-commander; John Wilkerson, adjutant; Clayton Thompson, judge advocate; Andy J. Becker, finance officer; Roland Wohlschlegel, service officer; Arthur Leineweber Jr., chaplain; Robert Giveans, sergeant-at-arms; and Russell Elliott and Retis C. King, color bearers.

Those elected as executive committee members are, W. Horace Ruhr, Gilbert D. Gayaut, William Moran, Edward Binet and Ellis Cuevas.

Re-elected as post trustees were, John Rutherford Jr., Edward D. Murtagh and Alvin Summy.

American Legion Post No. 139 is active in several community projects and sponsors a Little League Baseball team, an American Legion Baseball team, and co-sponsors a Babe Ruth Baseball team.

In 1988 the Bay St. Louis Legion post sent five young men to Boy's State, gave four scholarships to Pearl River Junior College and one scholarship to the University of Southern Mississippi.

The post plans on mounting an intensive membership campaign for the 1988-89 program, Commander Prevou said.

"I realize that because of personal responsibilities every veteran cannot be active in the American Legion. However, active or not, members can charge for its use.

"I wish we could have it no charge, but obviously we have to contend with the city budget. I don't feel other projects in our community should suffer to pay for this pier," he said.

The fees, he explained, will go toward insurance, salaries for pier attendants, maintenance, replacement light bulbs and other costs.

Longo said he could see the pier generating up to $50,000 a year, but even with that amount, the city will probably have to subsidize its operations from some other funds.

He said he believes that up to 3,000 family permits can be sold just to residents of Hancock County.

Although no official action was taken Monday, the board members present discussed the dissension the pier fee issue had caused and decided to conduct workshop meetings on the first and third Mondays of each month to help avoid similar problems with future issues.

The board of supervisors has been using workshop meetings for discussion and research, but any action called for is delayed until the next official meeting.

Longo said the last board meeting, which was July 5, had lasted until 12:30 a.m. The meeting had started at the regular time, 7:30 p.m.

The mayor said some of the delays in recent meetings had resulted from the fact that two of the aldermen, Colson and Frilot, are new to the board and are not familiar with some of its procedures.

"You asked a question the other night when we were going over the budget," he said, addressing Colson. "It was a good question, a very good question, but it took up some time to answer."

Longo stated that five-hour meetings are hard on all of the board members and he hoped that using workshops on the Mondays before regular meetings would cut the board meetings back to their usual length, which had averaged about 90 minutes.

He also commented that a dissenting vote has, until recently, been such an oddity in Waveland that the city clerk "had to ask how to record a no vote."

In addition to reducing delays, he said he hoped the workshops would reduce dissension.

"We've got to get to where we work as a team so we can move this city forward," he said.

The next regular meeting is 7:30 p.m. July 20.

P&Z likes Bay Tech plat

BY D.C. HARVILL

The Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning Commission reviewed a final plat for property owned by Bay Technical Associates on St. Charles Street.

Submission of final plat is required by a decision made by Judge Costa Vlahos before he can decide whether the property is to be rezoned as a special use district to allow for development of a high technology industrial park on the site.

Before discussion of the case, commission member David Reynolds excused himself from the room and from voting on the issue, explaining that he is employed by Bay Technical Associates and did not want to become involved in a conflict of interests.

After fielding arguments from those in attendance about whether certain restrictions placed on the property could be enforced, the commission passed a motion that the final plat go to the City Council for approval.

space center to break even.

The study would cost $5,000 to $7,000, Sheppard added.

Chisolm told the board that landfills need not be ruled out, because today's landfills are considerably different from the type currently being used.

The board of supervisors has made no decision yet regarding what to do about future garbage disposal or about the present landfill, pending the results of the soil borings, Cuevas said.

"Second honeymoon? What was the matter with the first one?"

Quotables by CUEVAS

I am glad the area finally received several showers in recent days as many homeowners were in the process of losing lawns and gardens.

In conversations with farmers at the local Farmers Market, the successful ones were those with a watering system.

Even the new Hancock County Farm's success was due to the fact that produce had to be watered during the dry spell.

We will probably get a long spell of rain and everyone will be complaining about too much instead of not enough.

We note many folks riding with their pet dogs in their cars and trucks in the area.

As many of you are aware, pet owners should never lock an animal in their vehicle with the windows up, because it only takes a few minutes in hot weather for the temperatures to rise very fast.

Pets should also be provided with an area of shade and plenty of fresh water.

Pets are like humans when it comes to hot weather and precautions should be taken to avoid heat strokes.

Just recently I witnessed a little dog running down a street apparently following its owner's vehicle on one of the hottest days.

Animals following their owners face additional risks during hot spells, not only from the heat, but additionally from traffic, and should be restricted from doing so.

Shelter reforms termed 'nitpicking' can be found in national guidelines

July 13, 1988
To the Editor
The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir,

As a member of the Hancock Animal Commission, I would like to address the issues concerning the representation of the Hancock County Humane Society on the commission.

In April 1988, the commission by-laws were amended by the commissioners to reduce the number of representatives.

This amendment reduced each government to three representatives and the society to two representatives.

The Waveland Aldermen proposed to take two society representatives off the commission would leave zero society representatives.

Is this reducing the numbers or is it running the Humane Society out?

Why not eliminate one representative from the three governments and have two representatives from each entity?

The Humane Society has supported the Animal Shelter for many years and to eliminate society representation would be a mistake.

In the last Sea Coast article about this situation, Mr. Ardley Hanneman stated that most of the commissioners were also society members.

That is true, but the society members who represent other entities do not represent the current views of the society and in many cases are on the exact opposite side of the issues. So they cannot be truly classified as sharing the HCHS viewpoint.

Mr. Hanneman accuses the current society representatives of 'nitpicking.' The primary representative of the society on the commission is Thyla Rogers who is currently the society president.

Though I may not always agree with all of Mrs. Rogers' reforms, there are many I do support.

Most of the 'nitpicking' issues presented by Mrs. Rogers, I did not consider to be 'nitpicky' but rather representative of a dedication to informing the commission of what is occurring at the shelter.

May I add that at the last commission meeting when the issues were presented by Mrs. Rogers, the chairman of the commission did not want these read out.

Was that an attempt to prevent the other commissioners from being informed of the shelter situation? These were some of the issues presented by Mrs. Rogers:

1. Why were animals not being vaccinated and dewormed when they were brought into the shelter? The shelter policy specifically states that such should be done to the animals when they are brought in unless they are sick or are going to be euthanized that day. This 'nitpicky' issue concerned a direct violation of shelter policy.

2. Mrs. Rogers asked why obviously sick animals were allowed to suffer and serve as a source of infection for other animals in the shelter.

Two cats with upper respiratory tract infections and a dog with a worsening skin condition were allowed to remain in the shelter for several days before being put out of their misery.

Mrs. Rogers was advocating the euthanization of sick animals promptly and not allowing them to spread the disease to other animals.

Any knowledgeable person would know that URT infections in cats are highly contagious and extreme precautions to prevent the spread of disease should be employed, yet these cats were housed in the middle of the cat quarters.

The dog's skin problem could have been due to sarcoptic mites which are not only contagious to other dogs, but to humans as well.

The executive committee was advised to euthanize, yet two days after the commission meeting the animals were still there.

3. Mrs. Rogers asked for increased sanitary precautions and a screen door because a fly infestation problem was occurring. The night I visited the shelter it was indeed full of flies. How knowledgeable does one have to be to realize the public health significance of flies?

4. Mrs. Rogers asked why fighting dogs were not separated. One beagle dog was killed by other dogs in the same pen and the shelter personnel were fully aware of the hostility between the dogs, yet did nothing.

The reforms Mrs. Rogers advocates are not unjustified, unreasonable or unrealistic.

The Humane Society of the United States Guidelines for the Operation of An Animal Shelter advocates many of the reforms Mrs. Rogers is proposing.

These include walking of dogs, blankets and towels, and very specific and detailed sanitation procedures.

These guidelines are being implemented all over the nation with success. Why can't Hancock County catch up with the rest of the nation?

The bathing and dipping of animals when they arrive at the shelter should be a part of any parasite control program.

Animals are brought into the shelter covered with fleas and ticks and measures should be taken to prevent spread to other animals and to humans.

Mrs. Rogers advocates the use of volunteers to help bathe, dip, change blankets and walk the dogs. By the use of volunteers these reforms could be implemented without placing a financial burden on the commission.

Quite possibly the society could be asked to donate shampoo and dip. A volunteer program with educated, properly trained and dedicated volunteers could be an asset to any animal shelter.

Harrison County uses volunteers and their shelter is a highly successful program of which I have heard only compliments.

Mrs. Rogers is not advocating a no-kill shelter. She is advocating an animal shelter which would be an asset to our communities rather than a headache.

She wants those animals who unfortunately may have to be put to sleep to at least receive some compassion before death.

Most importantly she advocates emphasis on adoption of animals through an environment conducive to visitation by the public and animals who are protected as much as possible from disease before they are adopted.

Before the Waveland Aldermen or any entity involved decides to eliminate society representation, may I suggest that those representatives sit down with Mrs. Rogers and other society representatives to shed more light on these issues.

Voter registration drive date changes listed

To the Editor
The Sea Coast Echo

Dear Sir:

Scheduled dates have been changed for a county wide voter registration drive being sponsored by the Concerned Citizens Organization of Hancock County and the Hancock County Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The dates have been changed due to the election of the Highway Commissioner, from July 23 and 30 to August 13 and 20. Registration books will be taken to the various precincts or polling places from 8 a.m. to noon on August 13 and 20.

We urge all our unregistered citizens to come forward and register to vote.

Those of you who are registered and don't vote please come forth and cast your vote because one vote does count.

We know this from experience, stand up and be counted. The November election is especially significant. We will elect a new president.

Please, after eight years of struggling, let's put someone in office whom we can depend on.

Cool heads, warm hearts needed for humane shelter

To the Editor
The Sea Coast Echo

Dear Sir,

Having been a volunteer worker with an animal shelter in another state—which like the one here in Hancock County was funded partially by two townships and the county and by the fund-raising projects of the all-volunteer Humane Society guided by a board of directors—it is difficult to understand that (unlike the well-functioning shelter above) the apparently complicated situation of the shelter here.

Although partially responsible for funding the shelter, the Humane Society is prevented from having any part in the operation of the shelter.

The very words 'shelter' and 'humane' seem to have gotten lost in the shuffle somewhere along the line.

Surely all who are allied in any way with the Animal Commission and the Humane Society must—or, at least, should—be concerned for the animals themselves and the lessening of the problem, which is two-fold:

1. The abandoned, unwanted animals, and

2. The sanitary, humane caring for these poor creatures while they are in the shelter.

This problem would not be so great but for the irresponsible, non-law-abiding animal owners who do not keep their 'pets' within fences on their own property, and/or do not have these pets spayed/neutered to prevent proliferation of the problem, strays. As I understand it, one of the primary projects which the Humane Society carries on is one of education of the general public.

The society urges responsible pet-ownership—which, again, involves the prevention of bringing into this (yes, for these poor four-legged creatures) 'cold, cruel world,' more unwanted, abandoned strays.

Note Lisa Halls' tragic account of what she, as a shelter attendant, faces so often.

The present shelter, even though improved in the few years of its existence, is inadequate for the area it must serve.

Also, as a letter writer last week questioned, "Do we have sufficient forces, are they paid enough...?"

These undoubtedly are factors to be considered, for this is a big territory for one or two persons to handle.

No one can do a good job if his time and energies are spread too thin.

So I'm sure these workers appreciate the help of the volunteer who goes daily to the shelter to help them care humanely for these helpless victims of our, unfortunately, generally unconcerned, uncaring, 'throw away' society.

Cannot we all who do care join hands in doing His good works here where the opportunity for service is as greatly given us?

After all, it was the poet Coleridge, I think, who phrased this well:

"He prayeth best who loveth best all things both great and small,

For the dear God who loveth us He made and loveth all."

Good efforts of Animal Commission stymied by reluctance to improve

To the Editor

An open letter to certain Animal Commission members:

A long time ago I was adopted by a very fine pair of human beings.

They cared for me, taught me right from wrong, saw to it that I got a good education, made sure that a good set of moral values was instilled in me before I went out on my own.

One of the things I learned was that those who are in a position to do so are duty bound to care for all the living things they have charge over in the best possible manner.

Anyone who takes on an obligation of that nature and refuses to live up to that obligation should step aside and at least give someone else a chance to try.

You all continuously brag about all you have done for the stray and unwanted lives you have in your charge, and rightly so.

You have done much, but more can be done and those who are trying to make things a little better for those unfortunate lives are being forced away from making their efforts reality. Why?

You all claim to be members of the Hancock County Humane Society, yet when that society only tries, and I emphasize tries, to make those lives just a little easier, with no cost to you or the people of Hancock County, you constantly ridicule your fellow members and make every attempt to block those efforts.

I suggest that not one of you is a spokesman for the society, since you are not officers of it. You definitely do not speak for me nor my friends.

I suggest that since you are so opposed to making the living being in your care a bit more comfortable during the few days they have left prior to death (even humans on death row are treated with dignity and respect), that you should resign from that body.

Resign from the Animal Commission and cease being the trouble makers.

What is wrong with using one's own time, one's own money to make a few lives just a bit better before those lives are ended?

You obviously don't want to, so why are you trying so hard to stop those who do?

U.S. SENATE DEALS BLOW TO BUSINESS

The nation's business community suffered a blow at the hands of the United States Senate when that body passed a measure that would require companies to provide workers 60 days' notice of plant closings and large layoffs.

A few months ago the President vetoed a trade bill containing a plant closing provision, which the President cited in his veto message. The House of Representatives voted to override the veto, but the Senate voted to sustain the veto by a narrow margin.

The bill just passed by the Senate was passed by a large "veto-proof" margin.

Mississippi's Senators split on the vote with John Stennis voting for the bill and Thad Cochran voting against it.

If the bill becomes law, companies with more than 100 employees will be required to give advance written notices to workers' and local officials of layoffs or plant closings if more than 50 employees are affected.

The House of Representatives is expected to take up the proposal immediately, and it is hoped that the lower chamber will recognize the restrictions this will place on businesses and vote to kill the measure.

In order for companies to perform at their maximum levels, they need the freedom to manage, not the confines of government regulations.

Youth Court and the building at Stennis.

Gex is contending that the board is required by statute to provide an office and the basic necessities of an office for the superintendent, which Gex interprets as meaning furniture, a typewriter, paper and other items of the same type.

He said there is no mention of the superintendent's staff.

Gex repeated a statement he has made on several previous occasions regarding what the board is allowed to do.

"We can only do what the statutes says we can do. If it doesn't specifically say we can do something, we can't," the attorney said.

Gex has explained that cities in Mississippi have what is called home rule, which means cities can do anything not specifically prohibited by statute. That privilege does not extend to counties.

When Randolph asked the board for some fill dirt and a culvert that will be needed if the trailer is moved to a private site, Cuevas replied, "Every time we take $1 out of the road and bridge department to subsidize your activities, we hurt them. They just don't have the budget for that."

"Make your office space out of your boardroom and find some other place for meetings," he suggested, prompting a complaint from Randolph that he already has three staff members working in the boardroom and has to send them home when there is a meeting for lack of anywhere else to put them.

"Any public facility we have is available for your use," Cuevas replied.

He said the school board may meet in the supervisor's room in the courthouse, in the Youth Court building or in one of the community centers.

When Randolph complained that the courthouse boardroom and the Youth Court building would not be available if court is in session, Cuevas said the supervisors have the same problem and have had to meet "all over the building" during Grand Jury sessions.

The superintendent explained that a school board is required by law to set its meeting place at the beginning of each year and can not change until the end of that year, which would make moving around difficult.

Cuevas said that the school district may have some more money next year due to additional taxes coming from the Borg-Warner plant at Port Bienville Industrial Park. The amount of money a mill will bring in for the county next year, however, is expected to remain the same.

"We have tried this year to keep millage down but look at what we're faced with just to meet new needs," Cuevas said, citing as examples a recent request from Pearl River Junior College for additional funds, the county's share of additional library funding and a $200,000 lawsuit that is still in litigation.

Randolph said he understands the financial strain but still is concerned with improvement in the school district.

"I want you to understand. I want to keep education in the forefront. This is the fastest growing district in the state," the superintendent said.

"Classrooms are one thing, but as the school district grows, school board offices and the superintendent's office becomes a necessity."

The board could take up the question again at its next meeting, which begins at 9 a.m. Friday, if the board members have been able to look at the site by that time.

In other business, the board accepted a bid of $236,053 from McQueen Construction of Collins for base repair, blacktopping and striping of about 28 miles of roads that receive State Aid Program funding.

State Aid Program Engineer George Pate and County Engineer Larry Seal checked the bids and said McQueen's bid was not only lowest, but was 2.7 percent less than the anticipated price.

The roads will include Lakeshore, Lakeshore-Lower Bay-Ansley and Ansley in Beat One; Preacher Powell, Rocky Hill and Standard-Dedeaux in Beat Three; and Dummyline Road in Beat Two.

The board also agreed to advertise for bids on construction of a park at the base of the American Legion Veterans Memorial Pier at Washington Street. The project is being funded through Bureau of Marine Resources and bids will be opened July 29.

"I don't know why you can't put the building on your property," Olsen said, referring to property in the park where the new Hancock County High School is to be built.

"I don't see how the building being 500 feet from the current administration building can make any difference," commissioner Russell Elliot said.

Randolph stated that it would save the county money if the building is located next to the current school headquarters.

Olsen said that the commission had already acted on the request in the past and would recommend that the commission allow the previous motion to stand.

"You are making us look like the bad guys," Olsen said. "We are for education as much as anybody else. It's just that we have been placed in the situation where we are obligated to provide you when it isn't our responsibility to provide you with space, that's the responsibility of the Board of Supervisors."

The commission decided to let their previous motion stand since it had already been approved by the Board of Supervisors.

Randolph asked to be put on the agenda for the next commission meeting to discuss the purchase of a piece of property in the park on which to build an office building.

In other business the commission:

—Heard from the architect for the new high school on the plans to prepare the school property for construction.

—Authorized the director to make a bid of $104,000 on two lots located on the turning basin at Port Bienville. The commission intends to make the bid pending a clear title and the soil on the site is tested clear by the Bureau of Pollution.

The soil test is intended to be a precaution against becoming involved in a hazardous waste clean-up similar to the one in which the EPA had to conduct at the park in 1985 and for which the county recently received a bill for $198,000.

Expert advises: Take care when you're in the sun, and the sun will take care of you!

Sunlight has been the target of a great deal of negative publicity for the last several years. As a result, most of us are more than aware of the hazards of the sun—hazards such as sunburn, premature aging of the skin and especially skin cancer.

We also know that the most effective way to protect ourselves from the sun's rays is to use a sunscreen with a high Sun Protection Factor (SPF).

But the sun should not always receive a bad rap. There are several therapeutic benefits that it provides, and they should not be underestimated.

According to Avon vice president of research and development, Gary Dugan, newer research has shown that psychological and physiological processes are more affected by the sun than we ever realized.

"Sunlight," says Dugan, "can alleviate depression, stimulate the circulation of blood and produce vitamin D. It can also increase alertness, and perhaps even stimulate sexual reproduction."

Looking forward

Scientists are projecting that, by the mid 1990s, there will be light therapies for autoimmune system diseases and rejection of transplanted organs, Dugan says. Light is already being used in the treatment of certain skin disorders, including acne and psoriasis.

If we are going to expose ourselves to the sun, and try to reap at least some of its therapeutic effects, where do we draw the line? How much sun is considered too much and dangerous?

Moderation the key

Explains Dugan, moderation is the key, since absorption of the sun's rays into the skin can be both beneficial and detrimental.

"If you are going to the beach during the summer months, you should protect yourself fully from the sun's harmful rays. Avon's Sun Seekers line, for example, includes the new Super Block, SPF 24 for ultra sunburn protection, and Sun Seekers Children's Formula. It carries an SPF of 15."

However, "for everyday exposure, you could probably use a product that provides slightly less protection from the sun, such as Sun Seekers Sunsafe Tanning Lotion (SPF 8), or Tanning Lotion (SPF 4).

"By using a lower level SPF you would still allow enough sun to penetrate your skin to provide some therapeutic benefits, while also protecting it from sun damage."

Fragrant help for summer skin

Summer's carefree atmosphere encourages us to spend more time outdoors in the sun and heat—we feel somehow healthier and more alive as our spirit reawakens from the winter doldrums.

However, time spent on the beach and at the pool, long walks in the sunshine and even leisurely picnics on the grass on hot days, can all take their toll, as the sun and heat can sap the skin of its moisture and elasticity.

Barbara Kotlikoff, senior vice president of marketing at Nina Ricci's L'Air du Temps, offers us the following expert tips on preventive maintenance for healthy summer skin:

- Moisturize, moisturize, moisturize: After every bath or shower—busy as we are—this is a must to ensure that skin keeps its healthy resiliency throughout the summer.

- Look for body lotions which are specially formulated with collagen and elastin for increased cell renewal rate to help skin maintain its natural elasticity.

L'Air du Temps' Lotion Satinée de la Mer (Perfumed Body Lotion) is a light, creamy lotion rich with perfume oil, nourishing sea salts and beneficial seaweed proteins to smooth on after bath or shower for luxurious, fragrant body-skin care.

- To avoid "scent clashes," use a body lotion that matches your fragrance. Look for those which are rich in perfume oil; they'll hold the scent longer.

- Apply body lotion while skin is still slightly damp, to hold moisture against the skin, keeping it softer and reinforcing the scent.

- Don't be stingy! Apply body lotion lavishly all over—the good ones, like L'Air du Temps, are light enough to be absorbed by the skin quickly, and won't feel greasy.

- Since more skin shows in the summer, don't forget your knees and elbows. Make sure your feet look their best in sandals and your nails show off frothy summer polishes to their best advantage by applying extra body lotion to feet and hands before bed, then sleeping with socks and cotton gloves on.

- To counteract gravity's downward pull on skin, always apply body lotion with upward strokes, starting at the feet.

"The Three Rs"—a lesson in mature skin care: Sensible advice prescribed by the professionals

By ELIZABETH WHEELER

When talking skin care, many words begin with "R." Verbs like restore, repair, re-surface, revitalize—all have been used to describe things done to the skin. But the three "Rs" of particular interest to adults of 50 and over are surely retard, replenish and remove.

- Retard: Some aging of the skin is, of course, inevitable. But there are things you can do to help retard premature aging of the skin.

For example, moisturizing and nourishing should be a part of your daily skin care regimen, and it is vitally important to stay out of the sun! Nothing ages and damages the skin faster than overexposure to the sun. (Remember—a prune is a plum left out in the sun!)

Apart from wrinkles (and the sun is the single most common cause of wrinkling), of much greater concern is the chance of skin cancer due to too much sun. Even if you overdid the tanning in your youth, it's never too late to start protecting your skin.

Dr. Craig Foster, a well known plastic surgeon in New York City, offered this advice: "Avoid exposing skin to sun, particularly between the hours of 10 AM and 2 PM; wear a sunscreen, better still, a block, and self examine for signs of nodules, lesions, anything unusual. If you notice something suspicious, consult your physician, a dermatologist or plastic surgeon. At its earliest stages, skin cancer is easily remedied," stated Dr. Foster.

(The American Academy of Dermatology has produced an excellent pamphlet entitled "Melanoma/Skin Cancer," which contains a self examination chart. For a free copy, write to them at P.O. Box 3116, Evanston, IL 60204-3116, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

- Replenish: Each and every day, we lose moisture and natural oils from our skin—from washing and showering, from exposure to the sun and drying winds, from central heating and air conditioning. To some extent, we can replenish moisture and oils with the regular use of moisturizers and skin creams.

Moisturizing is a particularly important part of any senior's skin care regimen and should be done at least once a day—after first spritzing the face and neck with bottled water.

Revitalizing oils, usually in the form of lotions or creams, are one means of "nourishing" skin and replenishing lost oils. Some products on the market offer both benefits. For example, newcomer

Swedish Secret, a facial moisturizer, does an excellent job of rehydrating and can be used under makeup or at night, to help nourish and revitalize skin.

Restoring the skin's elasticity is more difficult, although there are a number of products on the market which claim to make skin more supple.

Products containing retinoic acid, for instance, are newsmakers right now, claiming to treat fine wrinkles in sun-damaged skin.

- Remove: According to Dr. Darrell Rigel, a Manhattan-based dermatologist, "Freckles/age spots, broken capillaries (which are actually dilated veins), wrinkles/lines, red, rough patches and skin cancer" are the most common skin problems for women (and men) over 50.

All of these conditions can be treated by a qualified dermatologist or plastic surgeon and, in some cases, actually removed.

Age spots, for example, can be frozen off or removed with a light acid peel. The use of argon lasers is the latest technique for the treatment of broken veins. A new method of treating red, rough patches, which have the potential to be precancerous, is by selective removal with 5-Fluorouracil.

Many women (and more and more men) choose plastic surgery to make themselves look years younger. Two of the most popular such operations are the face lift and the procedure done to remedy drooping eyelids.

With all these products and techniques at our disposal, and with improved education and information, not to mention the chance to lead healthier and more active lives, isn't it nice to know that living longer also means looking younger longer!

Eye beauty from a makeup artist: Focus on these hot tips for summer survival

Looking good on hot summer days is an art—especially when it's humid! So, how do you keep your makeup looking great on these sticky days... prevent your mascara from smearing and your eye shadow from running? And what's the best way to healthy summer skin?

The makeup experts at the Aziza Eye Art Studio offer a collection of tips that will see you through the summer, beautifully.

- If you have to catch those rays, at least use a good sunscreen. Sunblock, at least SPF 15 protection, plus a large hat and sunglasses are vital equipment for summer survival. Choose a water-proof sunblock if you plan to go swimming.

- Your skin is exposed to the sun's ultra-violet rays every day, not just when you're on the beach. To help protect skin from these daily elements, several cosmetics companies now offer makeup products with built-in sunscreens.

Aziza has two super eye protectors you might want to try. Retouch Cover Stick with SPF 4 protection and Retouch Cream Concealer with SPF 2. Not only will you be covering little blemishes and under-eye circles, you will be protecting the most delicate tissue of all, the skin around the eye.

- In the summertime, oil glands tend to be more active. If you normally use cream blushers and eyeshadows, you might want to switch to powder formulations.

When the temperature rises, cream formulas have a tendency to melt and run. You'll find powder formulations have much better staying power. If you don't want to use a powder blusher, try dusting on translucent powder before and after you apply the cream.

- Nothing looks worse than mascara that has run. We blink every three seconds, so smearing is always a threat in humid conditions. Try using Aziza Fast-Drying Mascara. It's water resistant and very, very durable. It won't come off until you take it off, even if you perspire or get water in your eye.

If you're planning to swim, use Aziza Really Waterproof Mascara. Its gel-based formula locks on color for the longest wear possible. It won't streak or run when wet, and it dries quickly so there's no chance of smudging.

- To prevent the sun from bleaching lashes, always keep them covered with mascara. The sun and sea make lashes very brittle, so you might want to use a conditioning lash primer. Not only does this protect lashes, it gives them great separation and a healthy, lustrous sheen.

- Priming your eyes before you apply eyeshadow only takes seconds, but the flawless, long-lasting results are worth it. Try using a special shadow base or primer to lock on color even in sticky situations. A powder formulation works well in summer, as it absorbs moisture and neutralizes the effects of daily elements.

- In the summer, the best advice is to keep it simple for day. Let your natural radiance shine through. In the evening, you can wow them with creative eye looks but, for daytime, less is always more.

Cosmetics, cosmetic surgery make 'magic makeovers' possible

"How you look affects how you feel about yourself and how others feel about you."

This was the message sent by Dr. James McGhee, E.N.T. specialist, one of five guest speakers featured at the Slidell Memorial Hospital and Medical Center Women's Resource Suite seminar, 'Magic Makeovers.'

The purpose of the seminar was to provide local beauticians with an overview of the world of dermatology and plastic surgery, as it relates to cosmetology. More than 50 area cosmetologists signed up for the program, which included addresses by Dr. Elizabeth McBurney, dermatologist; Drs. George Linder and William Kelley, plastic surgeons; and Arlene Holley.

Arlene Holley agreed, "Most cosmetic procedures amount to giving you something God didn't or replacing something time has diminished."

The dramatic results documented through the use of Retin-A is a prime example of how the use of cosmetic products can enhance one's appearance, noted Dr. Elizabeth McBurney.

As far back as Ponce de Leon's search for the Fountain of Youth, people always have been searching for natural solutions to age-old problems of life expectancy, gray hair and the common cold.

There's no more need to trek through the wilds in search of a natural skin care product anymore—just look as near as your drugstore shelves for 100% pure cocoa butter.

During summertime, daily exposure to the harsh elements of sun and wind strip the skin of its moisture, leaving it dry, rough and chapped. Replenish this lost moisture by soothing and softening irritated skin with 100% pure cocoa butter.

Pure cocoa butter can also be used to prolong a tan, as it helps prevent peeling. And, its rich, natural emollients make legs feel smooth and silky after shaving.

Cocoa butter has a multitude of uses other than as a basic moisturizer. It has been used over the years as the natural way to help relieve the discomfort of burns, cuts and insect bites.

In addition, cocoa butter has a considerable following among new mothers as a favorable means of helping to smooth stretch marks.

Many skin care products boast about containing cocoa butter. In actual fact, most only contain a tiny proportion of this ingredient and do not fully capitalize on the natural benefits of 100% pure cocoa butter.

The newest of pure cocoa butter products on the market is Cocoa Magic. Cocoa Magic is the first pure cocoa butter product designed with the consumer's convenience in mind.

It rolls up with a slight twist of the wrist to reveal a wide, solid surface, practical for directly applying to your arms, legs or face without leaving any messy lotion on your hands.

No matter what your immediate skin care needs may be, 100% pure cocoa butter is the natural solution. Ponce de Leon had the right idea in looking for a natural solution to a number of our health related problems. Skin care today—maybe longer life tomorrow!

For more information on 100% pure cocoa butter and its uses, write to Cocoa Magic, P.O. Box 495, South Norwalk, CT 06856.

tion Factor) number, the more you are protected from UVB rays," added Dr. McBurney, who also cautioned swimmers against taking 'water-proof' sunscreens for granted. "You're still only protected for 40 to 80 minutes."

In addition to information about the latest cosmetic products available, participants in the 'Magic Makeover' seminar also had the opportunity to see the dramatic facial and body contour improvements made possible by plastic surgery.

Liposuction is one such surgical procedure that has been receiving much attention. Dr. Linder commented that it is a popular procedure and one that he has performed on patients, aged 18 to 65.

"With the changes in hairstyles, otoplasty (plastic surgery on the ears) has been tremendously popular, much more so than in the 70's," noted Dr. Linder.

'Magic Makeovers' was the first in a series of community education programs being developed at the Regional Women's Center. The Women's Resource Suite at Slidell Memorial Hospital and Medical Center is a health information and referral center offering essential preventative health information and education consisting of free literature, instruction, videotapes, and programs on health topics for women of all ages.

Programs are offered every week in the suite, with topics including PMS, menopause, osteoporosis, breast disease, teenage sexuality, adolescent gynecology and newborn care.

Recreational safety tips offered

Persons using the beaches of Gulf Islands National Seashore are reminded that recreational safety means, knowing the limits, understanding the hazards and planning in advance, Superintendent Jerry Eubanks warns.

"The following safety reminders will help to ensure that everyone has a healthy, fun and safe visit to the numerous beach areas located within Gulf Islands National Seashore," said Eubanks.

Swimming: At times, surf will develop strong currents (rip tides and undertow). Do not swim or wade in hazardous surf, and never swim alone. Use the lifeguard protected beaches located throughout the National Seashore whenever possible.

After long period of inactivity, the body is not ready for strenuous exertion such as swimming. Always pace yourself when beginning physical activities. Long periods of exertion without adequate rest breaks make you more likely to experience muscle cramps and exhaustion while swimming. Avoid vigorous physical activities for at least one hour after eating and wait at least one hour after each alcohol drink.

Feet First—First Time means checking to be sure that the water is deep and safe enough before diving in head first.

Rafts, air mattresses and inner tubes are fun, but winds blowing offshore or from the north could blow you out into deep water. Persons using flotation devices should always use them cautiously. Scuba divers are reminded to always dive with a partner and to display the diving flag when underwater.

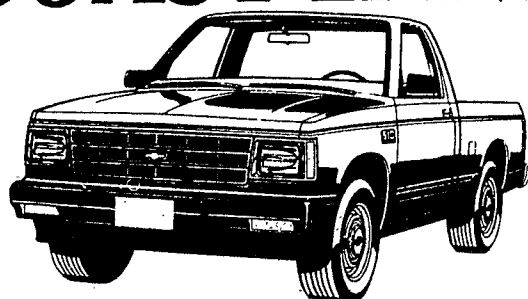

"Everyone is reminded to pace themselves while enjoying the many recreational opportunities found within Gulf Islands National Seashore," said Eubanks. Visitors should gradually begin their first few minutes of swimming or diving. Over exertion will tire you sooner and make you more prone to injury. Start your recreational activities slowly and increase exertion gradually. Never ignore pain, breathlessness, numbness or other physical signs, they are warnings that your body is nearing its limits and that you should stop and rest by getting out of the water.

"Following these safety tips will increase everyone's abilities to have a comfortable, enjoyable and accident free summer along the Gulf Coast beaches," said Eubanks.

Tim's Auto Tips

Never wait until the oil is a quart low before adding. There is no law saying you can't add one-half quart and put the other half in your trunk. A full crankcase guarantees the engine will have the maximum amount of oil available to it at all times. This practice can be even more beneficial in small capacity crankcases. If the engine only holds three quarts of oil and you wait until it is a quart low before adding, the engine operates that entire period with as little as two-thirds of the oil available. Remember, about 40 percent of the engine is directly dependent on the oil to cool it.

Striped bass stocking program continues

The harvest looks promising after Gulf Coast Research Laboratory fisheries personnel transferred approximately 82,000 striped bass fingerlings to the Claude Peteet Mariculture Center in Gulf Shores, Ala. in mid-June as part of the sixth year of the Mississippi-Alabama Cooperative Striped Bass Program.

Sponsored jointly by the National Marine Fisheries Service and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, this year's effort began on May 4 as 500,000 three-day-old striped bass fry were transported from the Alabama State Fish Hatchery at Marion to GCRL's semi-closed intensive culture facility in Ocean Springs.

Within 45 days, the fish grew to an average length of 1 1/2 to 2 inches and were ready for the move to the brackish-water ponds at Gulf Shores.

In the fall, the 4 to 6-inch striped bass will be tagged and released into Mississippi and Alabama coastal streams, according to GCRL striped bass project leader Larry Nicholson.

Since 1967, the Laboratory has been involved in a number of stocking projects which have aimed to reestablish local striped bass sport fishing.

Nicholson points to report of recent striped bass catches in local waters which indicate the success of these replenishment efforts.

'Soccer For Thinkers' scheduled at Bay High

Roy Patton, head coach of University of South Alabama Men's Soccer Team, will present a soccer day camp at Bay High School from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, July 25-29.

Patton was named Sun Belt Conference Coach of the Year for the 1987 season during which the South Alabama Jaguars posted a 19-2-1 record.

Patton, from Belfast, Northern Ireland, was a member of two All-Ireland University Finalist teams.

A member of two Irish First Division professional teams, 31-year-old Patton last played in 1984 in an Irish Cup Tournament game while on leave from the University of South Alabama.

In 1981 Patton received his first Sun Belt Conference Coach of the Year Award after turning the fortunes of the Jaguars in one year around from 1-11-0 to 15-2-2.

His teams have compiled a 72 percent winning record in NCAA Division I competition. Patton is a fully certified United States Soccer Federation coach and holds the Irish Soccer Association's Grade I Theory Certificate.

Patton has a master's degree in education and has conducted over 35-week-long regional and summer camps.

The camp, open to boys and girls of all age groups, will be limited to 100 participants. Campers will be divided into ability levels for instruction in the areas of training techniques, skills, principles of offense, principles of defense, technical progression, transition plays, set plays and goal keeping.

A camp T-shirt and regulation size soccer ball will be given to each participant.

The Bruins were swept in four (or is that five) games by the Edmonton Oilers in the Stanley Cup Finals. Not only did the Bruins suffer the embarrassment of losing all the games in the series, but they had a blackout which halted play halfway through game four.

Because of a scheduling conflict with the Celtics, the fourth game had to be moved to Edmonton's home rink — the Northlands Coliseum — where the Oilers clinched the series as three of the four games were played in Edmonton.

The Celtics didn't even get that far, losing in the Eastern Conference Finals to the Detroit Pistons. Age and injury finally caught up with the team as they could not keep up with the younger, and deeper, Piston team.

Injuries to Dennis Johnson, Danny Ainge and Robert Parish didn't help as the Boston bench was helpless against Isiah Thomas, Adrian Dantley and so on.

The Red Sox are languishing well behind the New York Yankees as the team is caught between going with the veterans or going with the youngsters. Players like Jim Rice and Dwight Evans are showing signs of slowing down, and the emerging stars are getting set to take over.

The Patriots could find themselves behind Indianapolis, Buffalo and Miami in what has suddenly become a powerful AFC Eastern Division. Also, Springfield, Massachusetts native Tim Mayotte has lost his place as America's top tennis player as a resurgent John McEnroe and 18-year-old Andre Agassi have taken places on the Davis Cup team.

The year of Boston hasn't exactly gone as planned, but there is always next year.

COACH OF THE YEAR—Bay St. Louis native Donald Corr, head coach of the Jonesboro High School baseball team in Georgia, has been selected to the Atlanta Braves 400 Club All-Metro and named Coach of the Year. Corr, a coach at Jonesboro for four years, led the Jonesboro Cardinals to a school best, 24-6 season this year. He is a 1977 graduate of St. Stanislaus, and graduated from the University of Southern Mississippi in 1983. Corr, the son of Janet Corr of Bay St. Louis, resides in Stockbridge, Georgia. National park campground system opens 1988 season

ATLANTA—Reserving a spot in one of America's scenic wonderlands now can be a year-round possibility in some national parks.

Grand Canyon and Yosemite National Parks have one campground each that will be available for reservations the entire year. Other parks' campgrounds may be reserved only during peak period of visitation.

The National Park Service and Ticketron, a computerized ticket firm with more than 600 sales outlets nationwide, have expanded the popular campground reservations system, now in its eighth season. Added to the computerized reservation system this year is the Bridge Bay campground at Yellowstone National Park.

"We offer campers the opportunity to make reservations at these selected parks so they'll have the assurance of a place to stay inside the park," said Bob Baker, the Park Service's southeast regional director. "However, there are campgrounds in each park that will continue to operate on a first-come, first-served basis."

Family campsite reservations can be obtained in 11 of America's national parklands: in the east, Acadia National Park (Me.), Cape Hatteras National Seashore (N.C.), Great Smoky Mountains National Park (N.C.-Tenn.), and Shenandoah National Park (Va.); western parks include Grand Canyon National Park (Ariz.), Rocky Mountain National Park (Colo.), Yellowstone National Park (Wyo.-Mt.-Idaho) Joshua Tree

National Monument, Sequoia and Kings Canyon National Parks, Whiskeytown National Recreation Area, and Yosemite National Park, all in California.

Group sites can be reserved at Grand Canyon, Great Smoky Mountains, Joshua Tree and Yosemite.

Reservations can be made no more than eight weeks in advance for family campsites (12 weeks for group sites). Full payment is required at the time reservations are made. A $10 cancellation fee will be charged for refunds.

Baker pointed out that reservations may be made only by mail or in person. Mail-in reservations are to be sent to Ticketron, Dept. R, 401 Hackensack Ave., Hackensack, NJ 07601.

Reservations may be made in person at any Ticketron outlet in the U.S., some National Park Service regional offices, and parks with campgrounds on the reservation system.

In the southeastern states, Ticketron outlets are located in these cities:

Georgia: Atlanta (National Park Service, Southeast Regional Office, Room 1004, 75 Spring St., S.W.)

Kentucky: Cave City, Elizabethtown, Erlanger, Florence, Frankfort, Lexington, Louisville, Radcliff.

North Carolina: Burlington, Chapel Hill, Charlotte, Danville, Durham, Fayetteville, Greensboro, High Point, Lexington, Pineville, Raleigh, Winston-Salem.

South Carolina: Columbia.

Tennessee: Knoxville, Maryville, Oak Ridge.

Additional information and forms for mail-in reservation are available from the National Park Service Southeast Regional Office, 75 Spring St., SW, Atlanta, GA 30303; telephone (404) 331-5187.

Bassin' with the pros

Benefits of BASS

If you're reading this column, you have a keen interest in the sport of bass fishing. It's nice to think of fishing as a pastime, but when you graduate to the level of keeping a fishing log, have an insatiable appetite for the latest lure selections, and would rather catch a four pounder instead of the three pounder your friend caught yesterday, then you've definitely made the transition into the sport of bass fishing.

Just like any other sport, there's an organization to which you should belong to get more out of your leisure-time activity. I'm talking B.A.S.S.—The Bass Anglers Sportsman Society founded in 1968 to bring together the most avid bass fishermen in America. It's more than just a fraternal organization for professional bass fishermen.

It seeks to stimulate public awareness of bass fishing, introduce youth to the wonders of fishing, and provide state conservation departments with organized moral and political support via promotion of good conservation practices.

Just as importantly, BASS demands adequate water standards, and encourages both private and governmental study into all the reasons why fishing on our lakes and streams is deteriorating. Finally, it seeks out solutions for restoring and maintaining top bass fishing conditions.

That's a big chunk of real estate to chew. In order to safeguard these goals, more members are needed to support local efforts by local BASS chapters. The time and effort you give are more than adequately rewarded by the benefits of BASS and the skills you learn from fellow bass sportsmen.

"One of the tremendous benefits of belonging to BASS is the magazine which has articles about bass fishing from all points of the country, and all the new techniques that are utilized out on the fishing circuit, which is where just about anything is tested whether it's a new product or a new technique," Johnson Outboard Pro Staff member Randy Fite points out.

"The first time someone uses a new product or technique and has success with it, the next issue of Bassmaster has an article about that. I think there are a lot of good basic articles done by the pros that offer a lot of information."

"I think probably the biggest benefit of any organization that has a magazine like Bassmaster is that it has tournament reports: who won the tournament and how they did it," emphasizes Ken Cook, Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff member.

"I think that's the most honest information that you can get for what sort of fishing technique was successful to that set of conditions—and both the techniques and the conditions will be reported fairly accurate."

"You can take that information and over a period of time it works almost as well as having your own log book to get information about seasonal patterns, and particular patterns that are successful during various times of the year. That's the real shortcut in learning to be a successful fisherman. That kind of information comes from a good monthly magazine like Bassmaster."

So, the $15 that the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society asks for is simply a bargain—especially since two-thirds of that goes toward your Bassmaster subscription fulfillment. For just over one dollar a month, you can buy a goldmine of information!

For further information on BASS membership, write to: Bass Anglers Sportsman Society, P.O. Box 17900 Dept. BWP, Montgomery, AL 36141. And be sure to tell them that "Bassin' with the Pros" columnist Trey Foerster sent ya!

Have a question you'd like a bass pro to answer? Jot it down and mail it to "Bassin' with the Pros" at this newspaper. Answers to your questions will appear in a future column.

Grant aids USM computer research

HATTIESBURG— Searching for information in computerized databases may be simplified, thanks to a new $91,000 grant for software development at the University of Southern Mississippi.

The computer program, known as SABRE (Semi-Automatic Bibliographic Research Environment), is being revised under the grant from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Designed to satisfy a NASA need to process bibliographic information, the first version of the software was made commercially available from Centec, a company based in Jackson, last fall. It was intended to solve a major problem for researchers and help create jobs for Mississippians.

Dr. David Huffman, Dean of the USM College of Science and Technology and the principal investigator, said NASA contracted with USM to enhance their version of the software, known as SORT-AID. He said the software should simplify and speed bibliographic searches.

"When a researcher starts a project, he does an 'assessment of the state of the art,' a search for what has already been done in the area," Huffman explained.

He said there are approximately 2,000 commercial and public databases that a researcher may use for such a search, including NASA's RECON database service. The researcher types in key words describing the topic for which he is seeking information, such as "rocket fuel," and the computer returns a list of bibliographic citations along with one to two-paragraph abstracts describing the articles.

"You may get 500 citations on a search," Huffman said, "of which at best, 50 to 100 are relevant to your research."

"Our software attempts to rank citations in relevance order, using information provided plus some artificial intelligence techniques," he explained.

He said the software attempts to concentrate relevant citations at the front of the citation list, saving the researcher from wading through a 500-page computer printout. It was developed at USM's Software Engineering Laboratory (SEL) last year, and made available through the efforts of the Institute for Technology Development Inc. (ITD), the SEL and the state of Mississippi. A formal announcement of the availability of SABRE was made last Nov. 30 in a press conference at the ITD office in Jackson.

The new version of the software, to be called Super SABRE, should be complete around June, 1989. Huffman said the new program will provide some enhanced features, such as a common format for citations, regardless of their source.

SHERLOCK HOLMES

It was over a century ago that a young Scotsman, dabbling as a fiction writer to augment his meager income as a physician, sold a short story, 'A Study in Scarlet.' It was the beginning of a literary legend. The hero of that story was a super-intelligent but emotionless detective named Sherlock Holmes.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's super sleuth returns to ETV when 'Mystery!' presents an encore broadcast of the series, 'The Return of Sherlock Holmes.'

The seven stories in the series featuring Jeremy Brett as the quintessential Holmes and Edward Hardwicke as his legendary companion Dr. Watson will air at 8 p.m. Sundays, beginning July 17, on Mississippi ETV, beginning with 'The Empty House.'

NOVA

The frozen remains of sailors who died 140 years ago on an ill-fated Arctic voyage are revealing new clues about the Franklin Expedition's search of the celebrated 'northwest passage' to the Orient.

ETV's Nova travels to the last known encampment of the 128 men of the party to discover what may have gone wrong and why at 8 p.m. Tuesday, July 19, when 'Buried in Ice' is rebroadcast.

This encore presentation also airs at 11 a.m. Thursday, July 21, on Mississippi ETV.

Apparel manual helps end frustration

Two University of Southern Mississippi professors and a local fashion consultant have teamed up to put an end to frustration in the classroom.

The three have published a laboratory manual to accompany their 1986 text on evaluating apparel quality.

Entitled "Experimental Apparel Construction," the 281-page paperback released this year promises to end the frustration the authors experience as instructors, along with that of merchandising students, in trying to evaluate apparel by constructing it.

"Often our students would get so upset trying to sew a garment, they would forget learning how to evaluate a garment's quality," said Dr. Anita Stamper, a USM fashion merchandising assistant professor who co-authored the book with USM assistant professor Sue Sharp and Dr. Linda Donnell, president of Hattiesburg Professional Development Associates and a former USM instructor.

"Over the past 15 years we've seen a growing number of merchandising students and a decreasing number of clothing and textiles students in our clothing construction classes," Stamper said, noting that the merchandising students have different career goals.

"What they need from a construction class is different from the needs of clothing and textiles students, and that was our rationale for writing the book,"

Kennedy to compete in horse show

Quarter horse enthusiast Windy Kennedy of Council Bluffs, Iowa will be competing at the 17th Annual American Junior Quarter Horse Association World Championship Show and Convention in Tulsa, Okla. July 31-Aug. 6.

Kennedy will be among 1,300 youths, ages 19 and under, from the United States, Canada and Australia, participating in the show. She will compete with three American Quarter Horses in showmanship, aged geldings, yearling mares and unter under saddle.

The AQJHA World Championship Show is an invitational event for top exhibitors, so competition promises to be intense and exciting! Only youths who have earned a predetermined number of points in competition between May 1, 1987 and April 30, 1988, plus two entries from each affiliated state junior Quarter Horse Association will be eligible to vie for the 28 AQJHA World Championships and prizes.

The 1988 World Show is sponsored by Levi Strauss & Co. which will provide support for promotions and expenses ranging from fairgrounds rental to youth social activities. Highlights of the show will air this fall on the 'America's Horse' television series on The Nashville Network.

Showing horses is the week's major activity, but also on the agenda are the AQJHA Convention Sunday, July 31, the AQJHA Speech Contest, Tuesday, Aug. 2; and the 10th Annual AQJHA World Championship Judging Contest Wednesday, Aug. 2. During the convention, state delegates will conduct AQJHA business and elect six national officers to represent the 8,700 members of AQJHA, the world's largest youth horse organization. The World Championship Judging Contest will include more than 100 AQJHA, 4-H and Future Farmers of America horse judging team members, and the AQJHA Speech Contest is a new competition with two $500 scholarship prizes.

Aside from business and competition, Show Week offers a variety of social activities and an Exposition and Trade Show featuring numerous equine-related products and services. The American Quarter Horse Association will have a booth at the Exposition, where individuals may request performance and race records on registered Quarter Horses.

Kennedy is the 17-year-old daughter of Dr. Charles and Cheryl Morris of Council Bluffs, Iowa and is a senior at Abraham Lincoln High.

She is granddaughter of Mrs. Doris Seuzeneau of Bay St. Louis and Gerald Kennedy of Waveland.

Stamper explained.

Sharp said students in any field must be able to generate, organize and disseminate information, so the laboratory manual includes activities that stimulate the development of those information skills, using the context of apparel construction and evaluation.

"Our merchandising students need the hands-on experience required to evaluate what they buy for the public or what they sell to the public. This text looks into specific types of construction and examines their cost, durability, sizes or brands, for example, as they relate to construction techniques," Sharp noted.

Each of the 11 lessons in the manual include lesson sheets, supply lists, complete patterns and detailed construction guides to complete the assignments. Some lesson topics include fabric evaluation, shaping devices, underlying fabrics, closures, decorative detail, fit and alteration, sleeve finishes, and treatments of necklines, hems, pockets and waistlines. Detailed illustrations, for the text were provided by Sharp's expertise.

The group's first book, still the only one of its kind on the market, has sold 5,000 copies and is entering its second printing. More than 60 colleges and universities have adopted the text for classroom use, according to a report by the publisher, Fairchild Publications of New York.

"Where no formal approach to evaluating apparel existed in the past, there has been a change to a more business-oriented approach," Stamper said. Although the buyers' jobs are still there, she said students now want higher level management positions, often in their own businesses, where all the skills are required.

The year-long effort hasn't produced significant monetary gains for the authors, but the effort "was worth it even if we were the only ones using the book," said Stamper. The three already plan another text on apparel quality recognition.

Avoiding all dairy products is no longer considered the best prescription for people suffering from an inability to tolerate or digest lactose, the sugar found in milk.

"While avoiding dairy products—as was once recommended—would solve the immediate problems, it often had long-term health implications," said Barbara McLaurin, human nutrition specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

The specialist said that in addition to the vitamins, minerals and protein found in dairy products, more than 75 percent of the calcium found in the American diet is derived from dairy foods. Osteoporosis, a condition that causes thin, weak bones in later life, is believed to be caused largely by a lack of calcium in an early diet.

Lactose intolerance is a condition most often found in blacks, Hispanics, Orientals and Native Americans. Some studies have estimated that up to 50 percent of the adult population or 80 percent of the non-Caucasian population may be lactose intolerant.

"Lactose intolerant people no longer have to avoid dairy products altogether. Instead, they can consume them in moderation," McLaurin said. "By drinking milk with a meal or snack, the digestive process will be slowed by the solid foods and reduce the chances for problems."

Lactose is broken down in the intestines by the enzyme known as lactase. Without that enzyme, a person is considered lactose intolerant.

Researchers at Mississippi State University have been among the many researchers across the nation involved in developing alternative dairy nutrient sources for people with lactose intolerance.

Dr. Joe Cardwell, professor of dairy science in dairy manufacturing, said lactose intolerance is a popular research area for food scientists.

Cardwell said two milk products are on the market to compensate for people who cannot properly digest lactose. One milk product has the lactase enzyme added to the milk to compensate for the absence of the enzyme in the body.

The second product is called acidophilus milk, which contains a culture that interacts with the digestive system rather than the milk itself.

MSU food science graduate student Wayne Geilman explained there is a third process that is being researched at MSU for lactose intolerant people called ultrafiltration. This method involves filtering the lactose from the milk product and leaving the other nutrients in the milk. No product that has been through this process has been marketed yet.

McLaurin said that by keeping some form of lactose circulating through the digestive system all through life, a person could prevent or lessen the amount of intolerance. McLaurin said there is a difference in lactose intolerance and an allergy to milk. For accurate diagnosis and recommended treatment, a doctor should be consulted.

Fluid intake a must to avoid heat illness

By S. Ryan Thompson
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Drinking plenty of fluids this summer is especially important because this year's combination of higher-than-normal temperatures and lower-than-normal humidity increases the amount of fluid the body loses through perspiration.

Adequate fluid levels in the body are necessary to avoid heat-related illnesses such as heat stroke, heat exhaustion, heat syncope, heat cramps and heat rash.

Temperatures are up to ten degrees higher than normal for this time of year, according to Dr. Charles Wax, state climatologist at Mississippi State University. Lack of rainfall during the drought has caused humidity to be very low, he said.

"The sweat evaporates off your body and you may not realize how much water you're losing," Wax said. During humid weather, perspiration—the body's mechanism for cooling—evaporates at a slower rate because the surrounding air is more saturated.

Thirst is not always an accurate indicator of the body's need for water. On the average, the body loses about 2.5 quarts of sweat per day, but during strenuous work or play, it can lose up to 3.5 quarts per hour, according to an article in Consumers' Research Magazine.

Inadequate water intake and overexertion by unconditioned or unacclimatized people are major causes of heat illnesses, said Dr. John Longest, director of the Student Health Center at Mississippi State University. Acclimatization refers to a person's adjustment to heat conditions.

The National Institute for Occupational Safety recommends a schedule allowing people who work in hot environments to acclimatize over a six-day period. On the first day, they should perform at about 50 percent of the normal working level and increase the workload by 10 percent each succeeding day.

People at particular risk of heat illnesses include the elderly and those with conditions such as diabetes, heart disease, arteriosclerosis, high blood pressure and Parkinson's disease.

Conditions that reduce the capacity to sweat such as skin diseases and burns increase risk, as do some medications. People who have had heat disorders before also face increased risk.

"Once sensitized, they're more prone to recurrences," Dr. Longest said.

Heat stroke is the most serious heat illness, and is recognized as a medical emergency. According to the National Center for Health Statistics, 2,386 people died of heat stroke in 1983, the latest year with available statistics.

When the body temperature exceeds 106 degrees Fahrenheit, its cooling mechanism fails to function, resulting in heat stroke. It can be fatal if not treated immediately.

Symptoms of heat stroke include a high body temperature, nausea, dizziness, accelerated pulse rate, confusion, convulsions and unconsciousness.

Most victims of heat stroke will have red, dry skin indicating that perspiration has stopped, but in exertional heat stroke, the victim might still be sweating profusely.
